Course Description:
“Human Rights Education is both a lens through which to observe the world and a methodology for teaching and leading others” (Amnesty International). Learning about human rights is the first step toward respecting, promoting, and defending those rights. Designed to support teachers of kindergarten through college as well as educators working in non-formal settings such as community organizations, Human Rights Education is dedicated to promoting the human rights principles and positive value system that are set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

This course aims to facilitate the teaching of human rights through modeling the exemplary pedagogy and praxis. It explores the use of oral history, literature, visual and performing arts, interactive curriculum, and community activism as means of human rights education.

To demonstrate human rights education, the course focuses on three different case studies intertwined with racism, discrimination against women and children, and poverty. The case studies for Fall 2015 are: 1) criminal injustice and racism in the U.S., 2) children’s rights in occupied Palestine, and 3) indigenous rights and environmental justice with a focus on Ecuador. We will spend two class sessions on each case study: 1) during the first session, we will examine and discuss the assigned readings in order to analyze the issues from the perspective of international human rights. 2) During the second session, we will focus on ways to share knowledge through developing effective curriculum and pedagogy in the classroom and crafting workshops in out-of-school contexts. For both sessions, we will hear from Bay Area community members who are engaged in activism and/or teaching around the specific case studies.

For the final project, students are required to select a particular human rights issue and develop an effective research-based pedagogical tool to train others about that issue.

Course Requirements:

30% 1. Class Participation.
   a. Participate in class discussions, groups, and activities. Be prepared by reading assignments thoroughly, taking notes, and writing reflections.
   b. Contribute to all online forums on Canvas. Post resources and news items related to issues addressed in class.
   c. Attendance is mandatory given the interactive nature of the class. Please be prompt to all sessions. Also please notify your instructor (via phone or email) if you must miss a class for illness or an emergency. (See guidelines for class participation on page 10).

20% 2. Group Presentations: Pedagogical Activity on Case Study
   Working in teams and under guidance provided by the instructor, students develop an interactive pedagogical activity related to the assigned case study. The team presents this to the class in a way that engages other students and serves as a model for a K-16 classroom, workplace or community context. Make sure to incorporate UN documents. Please restrict presentation to 30 minutes. Submit a written lesson plan. NOTE: Doctoral students are expected to play a leadership role in the planning and preparation. (See schedule and rubric on page 10).

40% 3. Final Project: Pedagogy into Praxis. (See guidelines on page 11)
10%  4.  Film Review

Observe a film related to the human rights issue of your final project. Prepare a 2-3-page film review to present to class on Class 8 (See guidelines on page 10)

Required Textbooks:

4. Additional readings and curriculum materials are posted on Canvas.

Course Schedule:

Class One: January 24, 2015

Themes: Introduction to course, students, and instructor. What are “human rights”? What are “universal human rights”?

Readings:

Activities:

Multilingual choral reading of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Class Two: January 31, 2015

Themes: What is human rights education (HRE)? How can teachers bring HRE into their classrooms? How can activists bring HRE into their communities?

Readings:

The following readings, posted on Canvas, Class #2, are chapters in my co-edited book to be published in April 2015:

1) Talamante, O. (Foreword).
3) Yang, K. W. Afterword: Will human rights education be decolonizing? (pp. 283-296).

UN Documents:
1) UN Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training

Evaluating Class Participation

Outstanding Contributor: Contributions in class reflect exceptional preparation. Ideas offered are always substantive, provide one or more major insights as well as direction for the class. Challenges are well substantiated and persuasively presented. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of discussion would be diminished markedly.

Good Contributor: Contributions in class reflect thorough preparation. Ideas offered are usually substantive, provide good insights and sometimes direction for the class. Challenges are well substantiated and often persuasive. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of discussion would be diminished.

Adequate Contributor: Contributions in class reflect satisfactory preparation. Ideas offered are sometimes substantive, provide generally useful insights but seldom offer a new direction for the discussion. Challenges are sometimes presented, fairly well substantiated, and are sometimes persuasive. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of discussion would be diminished somewhat.

Non-Participant: This person says little or nothing in class. Hence, there is not an adequate basis for evaluation. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of discussion would not be changed.

Unsatisfactory Contributor: Contributions in class reflect inadequate preparation. Ideas offered are seldom substantive, provide few if any insights and never a constructive direction for the class. Integrative comments and effective challenges are absent. If this person were not a member of the class, valuable air time would be saved.

(These guidelines were adopted from the web site of Prof. John Tyler of Brown University's Department of Education.)

HRE Group Presentations: Pedagogical Activity on Case Study

Working in teams under the instructor’s guidance, students develop an interactive activity related to the assigned case study. The team presents this to the class in an engaging way that serves as a pedagogical model. The 30-minute presentation should incorporate appropriate UN documents. Team submits written lesson plan.

Deadlines
* Proposal Due: Class #6, March 28
* Draft Due: Class #8, April 25
* Final Due: Class #9, May 9

Proposal:
This should be an outline or plan for your final project. For the paper component, this should include a description of the human rights issue you are addressing, importance of this issue, relevant international laws or treaties, audience, and at least 5 tentative research references. For the pedagogical component, provide a sketch of the pedagogical approach you will use: curriculum unit, PowerPoint presentation, teach-in plan, training guide, I-movie, play, research paper, etc. Remember that this should be a tool for education or activism.

Final Project: Research Paper + Pedagogical Tool:

Research Paper: The research paper component should be at least 10 pages (plus references) for MA students and 15 pages (plus references) for Ed.D. students and must include the following:

I. Introduction: Clearly describe the human rights issue you are addressing and its significance. This is where you state your rationale for selecting this topic, including your personal, professional and/or political reasons (if appropriate).

II. Research: Provide a review of the literature on this human rights issue, including its historical development. Discuss what international laws/treaties are involved in this issue, how they have or have not been applied, and the actions that have been taken by UN bodies, NGOs or activist organizations to address this issue. Make sure to analyze the causes and effects of the human rights violations involved.

MA students should cite a minimum of 10 references and Ed.D. students a minimum of 15 references, including assigned readings. Use APA style and add a final reference list.

Pedagogical Tool: This is the creative part of the project! Select the pedagogical approach and content that is most appropriate for your intended audience and setting. The objective is to translate your research in a form that makes its content meaningful for your population.

For example, choose a curriculum unit if you are an elementary school teacher. Make up a plan for a teach-in if you work on a college campus. Develop a workshop training session if you are working with adults in a community-based organization, create an I-movie if you are involved in urban youth development, or write a play if you teach drama in an after-school program for teens. I encourage you to integrate the arts into this project!

Think about a project that would provide about a week’s worth of material if you are teaching, or a full day’s worth if you will be conducting a workshop. If you are developing curriculum, provide about 5 lessons.
Include the film you chose for your film review (if appropriate) and specify how you would use that film, or segments of that film.

Remember the dual purpose is to EDUCATE and ACTIVATE!

Student models are posted on Canvas, Final Project Models.
FILM REVIEW GUIDELINES

Prepare a 2-3 page written review that gives the highlights of the film and present these orally (5 minutes) to the class on April 25. Include title, director, country of origin, date of release, leading actors, and site of viewing in your heading. If appropriate, select a film that addresses the issue you will use for your final project.

Some suggested questions to consider in your review:

- What makes it work? What makes it powerful?
- What is the human rights issue(s) the film is addressing? What are the relevant human rights treaties/covenants? Give context and explanation of the issue.
- How do the protagonists in the film resolve or not resolve this issue?
- Describe other features that make the film work (eg. cinematography, acting, direction, music, etc.).
- Do you recommend this film? Why or why not?
- How might you incorporate this film into curriculum? How could you use it as a pedagogical tool? As a tool for activism? For human rights training?
- Be creative!

Class and University Policies

USF Email: I will use the email function in CANVAS to send emails to the class. Please ensure that your email address is set up to receive email from your University of San Francisco account so that you do not miss important information and announcements about our class.

Statement on Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the using of ideas, data, or language of another person without specific or proper acknowledgement. Utilizing the same work for multiple assignments in the same or different classes without prior approval by instructor also qualifies as plagiarism. In cases where a faculty member suspects a student of cheating or plagiarism, the student will be reported and may face disciplinary action including suspension.

Disabilities: If you are a student with a disability or disabling condition, or if you think you may have a disability, please contact USF Student Disability Services (SDS) at 415 422-2613 within the first week of class, or immediately upon onset of disability, to speak with a disability specialist. If you are determined eligible for reasonable accommodations, please meet with your disability specialist so they can arrange to have your accommodation letter sent to me, and we will discuss your needs for this course.
